

Table of Contents

Preface	7
Chapter 1
Chicago Human Ecology and the Naturalization of the Social Order	11
1.1 Definition of Concepts: Human Ecology, Community and Society	12
1.2 Competition, Dominance, and Succession in Nature and Society.....	12
1.3 Questioning the “Natural” Character of the Environment in Human Ecology.....	16
1.4 Tracing the Origins of Human Ecology.....	18
1.4.1 Darwinism and Social Thought.....	18
1.4.2 Ecology and Economics	21
1.5 Ecological or Social Forces?.....	22
1.6 The Circular Migration of Concepts	25
1.7 Conclusion.....	27
Chapter 2
Mid-Century Models of Society and Environment Interactions	28
2.1 Human Ecology and the Ecological Complex	28
2.2 Developments of the “Ecological Complex”	30
2.3 The collapse of the Maya civilization: An application of the PISTOL model.....	32
2.4 Sociological critiques of the ecological complex.....	34
2.5 Further Elaborations of the Ecological Complex.....	35
2.6 Models of Environmental Impact.....	37
2.7 Environmental Sociology: A New Paradigm?	38
2.8 Environmental Sociology: The Political Economy Approach.....	39
2.9 Concluding Remarks at the End of the “Journey”	42
2.9.1 On the Theorization of Society-Environment Interactions.....	42
2.9.2 On the Theoretical and Ideological Relevance of the POET Model.....	44
Chapter 3
Towards an Ecological Imagination: An Indian Perspective on the Social Ecosystem	47
3.1 Introduction	47
3.2 The Ecological Bases of Social Life	47
3.3 Ecology and Equity : the Ecological Perspective and its Insights	48
3.3.1. The Promise of the Socio-ecological Perspective.....	50
3.3.2 The Blind Spots of the Theory	51
3.4 Expanding the Framework.....	52
3.5 Conclusion: why an Ecological Perspective?	53
Chapter 4
Ideal Types of Society – Environment Interactions	54
4.1 An Introduction to the Notion of Social Species	54
4.2 Reconstructing the “Social Species” Concept as an Ideal Type.....	56

4.3 The Ecological Point of View.....	58
4.3.1 Eco-Social Groups as Part of Ecosystems.....	59
4.3.2 Modified and Natural Ecosystems	61
4.4 The Social Structural Point of View.....	63
4.4.1 How Eco-Social Groups “Use” the Ecosystem.....	64
4.4.2 How the Modified Ecosystem Influences Eco-Social Groups.....	69
4.5 The Social Constructionist Point of View.....	71
4.5.1 The Social Construction of Environmental Problems.....	72
4.5.2 An Alternative View on the Construction of Environmental Problems	74
4.5.3 Environmental Problems and Their Ideological Context	77
4.6 Tying Together the Three Vantage Points on Eco-Social Groups.....	80

Chapter 5

The Environmental Movement: A Social Constructionist Perspective.....	83
5.1 The Emergence of Environmental Movements	83
5.2 Environmental Movements as Social Movement Organizations.....	86
5.3 Environmental Groups as a Special Category of Eco-Social Groups.....	88
5.4 Environmental Groups as Constructors of Ecological Ideologies	92
5.5 Conclusion.....	98

Chapter 6

A Historical Sociological Account of the Rise and Development of Environmental Sociology.....	99
6.1 Introduction.....	99
6.2 Environmental Sociology and Its Challenge to Mainstream Sociology.....	99
6.3 On the Different Uses of the “Environment” in Sociology.....	101
6.4 The Sociology of Environmental Sociology	102
6.4.1 The Socio-Historical Origins of Environmental Sociology	103
6.4.2 The Trajectory and Reception of Environmental Sociology in the Broader Discipline.....	105
6.4.3 Environmental Sociology and Its “Social Carriers”	106
6.4.4 The Sources of Opposition to Environmentalism: A Possible Explanation	109
6.4.5 The Contextual Explanation Revisited.....	109
6.5 Conclusion.....	110

Chapter 7

Comparison of the Approaches and Conclusions.....	111
7.1 A Systematic View of the Approaches	111
7.2 Some Points of Contention in the Eco-Social Groups Approach and Their Possible Solution	115

References.....	118
------------------------	------------