

Contents

1. INTRODUCTION: AMERICA DOES NOT EXIST	9
2. THE ROOT OF EXCEPTIONAL ILLUSION: PARTICULARITIES OF AN IDEALISTIC DEFINITION OF IDENTITY
2.1. Premises: the idea-based identity	17
2.2. Theoretical background	19
2.2.1. Individual and group identities	20
2.2.2. Identity as a constructed concept.....	22
2.2.3. The role of “the other” in articulating identities	23
2.3. A unique perception of the self.....	26
2.3.1. Deviation from a traditional identity structure.....	28
2.3.2. Idealism: a singular and illusive essence of identity.....	32
2.3.3. The Declaration of Independence: institutionalized idealism	36
3. AMERICAN SPACE: ELUSIVENESS AND SINGULARITY
3.1. Perception of American spatiality	43
3.2. The mythical space: the western frontier	50
3.3. Elusiveness.....	57
3.4. Singularity.....	63
4. (AMERICAN) DREAMING: ORIGINS OF THE NATIONAL REVERIE
4.1. The Dream as fundamental part of the American myth	69
4.2. The ideology of the dream	78
4.3. A dual origin of the American dream	81
4.3.1. Seeding the Dream: the colonial Puritan experience	81
4.3.2. Transcendentalist contributions to the Dream	91
5. THE EXCEPTIONAL AMERICAN: A DISTINCTIVE RELATION WITH REALITY
5.1. Premises: a brief review of exceptionalist theories.....	103
5.2. Components of exceptionalism and pseudo-reality	121
5.2.1. An essentially idealistic nature.....	122
5.2.2. The good-evil dichotomy.....	125
5.2.3. Optimism and future-oriented exceptionalism	129

5.3. Delusion or the American mission	132
5.3.1. The beginning of the mission.....	132
5.3.1.1. A pervasively religious aspect	137
5.3.1.2. Questionability of the missionary purposefulness	139
5.4. An analysis of the exceptionalist rhetoric	143
5.4.1. Morality-based idealism	147
5.4.2. Compare and contrast: a blunt distinction of values	149
5.4.3. The “happy-end” device.....	151
5.4.4. Manipulative mission.....	153
5.4.5. The delusional pattern.....	155
6. AN IMAGINED VERSION OF REALITY
6.1. A constructed image	159
6.2. A linguistic dilemma	168
6.3. Old marketing: promotion literature	171
6.3.1. The Columbian construction of America.....	176
6.3.2. Further evidence: Hakluyt, Hariot, Smith, Denton.....	183
6.4. New marketing: a media-interpretation of America	196
6.4.1. The reality behind the screen: selling pseudo-America	196
6.4.2. Real life vs. reel life.....	206
7. CONCLUSIONS.....	215
WORKS CITED	219
Annex 1 - The Gettysburg Address	229
Annex 2 - "The Evil Empire," President Reagan's Speech to the House of Commons, June 8, 1982	230
Annex 3 - George W. Bush's Address to Congress and the American People, given on Thursday, September 20, 2001	236