

CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION	11
WHAT IS LEFT?
Defining the Left	29
The right-wing origins of neoliberalism	60
Hegemony in the capitalist world economy	73
Theory of crisis: economy, democracy and ideology	87
Defining Populism	93
Conclusions	103
THE DECLINE
The global ideological context of the Cold War	106
The 1989 moment	116
The post-communist remains of the European left	125
The role of the Party of European Socialists in diluting the Left	131
Conclusions	135
THE TRANSFORMATION
The neoliberal project in the post-communist context	138
The economy of European integration	143
Social-democratic centrism and the “Third Way” alternative	148
Reconfiguring the ideological axis	156
Varieties of the “left”	157
The New Left and Identity Politics	165
Conclusions	170
THE CRISIS
Building up to the 2008 economic crisis	173
The economic crisis of 2008 as trigger for the crisis of the left	176
The democratic crisis - the onset of democratic fatigue	179
Populism and democratic fatigue	189
Left-wing populism	193

Right-wing populism as substitute for the left	204
Populism in a Left-less Romania	218
Conclusions	229
FINAL CONCLUSIONS	233
BIBLIOGRAPHY	244
Online sources	256